One Man Killed When Armed Miners Clash With Border Patrol

John Gore, Logan County Deputy Sheriff, is Victim of the Fight.

VOLUNTEER FORCE GROWS

Rugged Mountaineers Offer to Join Civilians Protecting Border; Women Form Second Line of Defense and Stand by Their Coffee Pots.

By Associated Press.

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 31.—John Gore, Logan county deputy sheriff, was killed in a fight between a border patrol and an armed band at Blair mountain this morning. This is the first casualty since state police, deputy sheriffs, and volunteers from Southern West Virginia gathered here to resist the forces, which for days have been assembling in the east side of Spruce Fork ridge, believed to be bent upon an invasion of Logan county.

Re-enforcements for the thousand or more volunteers who are stretched along the Logan-Boone county line continued to pour into Logan throughout the morning from towns in Southern West Virginia. Many of them were rugged mountaineers who said they had heard they were needed in Logan and had no time in getting here.

Immediately upon their arrival they were given a warm meal and as quickly as possible sent into the mountains to join units already organized. An event was the arrival of Captain E. E. Lawson of Williamson, who led a company of Negro men across the mountains. They had been discharged from the Negro militia, service of that county, last Sunday.

The "second line of defense" has been joined by the women, who under competent leaders are preparing meals for the arriving volunteers and the reserve forces held at the county seat. Many of them worked throughout the night and were relieved at dawn by a corps who promised to stick to the sandwiches and coffee pot during the day.

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 31.—Airplane today distributed copies of President Harding's proclamation throughout this district. Thousands were printed here last night. Friend and foe alike received the pamphlets containing the President's command that all persons engaged in "insurrectionary proceedings" disperse and return to their homes at or before noon Thursday, Sept. 1.

Flying westward, he crossed the Kanawha river, dropping the circulars.

At dawn the Spruce Fork ridge guard reported "all well." There was no fighting during the night. No attempt was made to scale the eastern slope of the hill. How the other fellows spent the time between darkness and daybreak was a matter for conjecture. Whether their forces had been added to by other armed bands was not determined by the Logan patrol. Sharpen, Blair, Jeffrey, and Crotcher, where men were reported gathering for an invasion of Logan county, were still cut off from telephone and telegraph communication and none of the Logan county forces hazarded a trip down the hillside to find out what was going on.

In Logan the night was one of great activity. Conferences between state and county authorities were held. Rifles were loaded and stacked in the courthouses, corridors and a thousand "defenders" held themselves in readiness for duty.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 31.—State forces and an armed band came together in the mountains near Blair mountain this morning, according to dispatches received at the office of Governor Morgan. Beyond the statement that there had been firing along Blair mountain, near the town of Blair, Logan county, the Governor's office announced there were no details.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Final instructions were given by Secretary Weeks today to Brigadier General Bandholtz, who has been ordered into the War Department in the West Virginia coal fields to observe the response to President Harding's proclamation calling on all persons engaged in "insurrectionary proceedings" to return to their homes by tomorrow noon.

General Bandholtz had been expected to leave early today, but his departure was postponed until late in the day. Major General Harbord, assistant chief of staff, also attended the conference at which General Bandholtz gave his instructions.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 31.—State officials here today closely scanned reports having to do with the situation along the Boone-Logan county border, and while they believed the heat there did not exist, they gave, as their belief, that the camps of armed men in Boone county and the east part of Logan county would not Sheriff fails to find Union officials in their offices, he reports.

By Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 31.—Warrants for the arrest of C. F. Keeney, president, and Fred Mooney, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, District No. 17, arrived from the office of Sheriff Newell, who was found in the office of the union when closed. He returned to the sheriff's office and reported he could not find the two union officials.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Recommendations that funds now in possession of the alien property custodian should be turned over to the American claims against Germany were made to President Harding today by Custodian Miller.

Most of the American claims, Mr. Miller explained, resulted from the sinking of the Louisiana and other ships prior to America's entry into the war. Billed down those now on file with the State Department amount to more than $400,000,000. Mr. Miller said. The property held by the custodian was estimated in value at $16,000,000.

Dog Is Never Too Old for Taxation

By Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 31.—One hundred and sixty-six of the 887 women widows by mining accidents in Pennsylvania in the five year period, 1916 to 1920, inclusively, remarried, 65 of them inside of a year, according to the analysis of coal mine accidents and workmen's compensation insurance made by the state compensation insurance experts.

The figures were taken from original sources that also show that 24 of those who married again were under 21 years of age.

It occurs in some sections of the state where a dog's chance in age when it can no longer be used for hunting or helping with work is classed as not taxable. This local custom will disappear, however, before statutory law.

Fayette Farmers
Study Potato Crops
In Lehigh County

The potato demonstration conducted by E. L. Nixon of the Pennsylvania State College Extension department in Lehigh county was attended by a number of potato growers from Fayette county and pronounced a decided success.

The demonstration was held in the state's greatest potato producing section and the demonstration was given by farmers from the various counties of the state, over 500 men being present in 32 automobiles. The cars swarmed into Dr. Peters' farm 60 or 600 feet apart, morning coming from every direction. It was here in the Pennsylvania potato king's farm that the groups from the different counties met.

Dr. Peters personally conducted the tour over his farms, explaining the methods of his best and most up-to-date potato culture. Beginning with the sowing of sweet clover as a cover crop, showing fertilizing, planting and harvesting, he practically revised the knowledge of the farmers out in the field. According to Dr.
Peters' findings, "The day was brought to a close at Mr. Peters' farm where he was demonstrating that potatoes could be raised at the rate of 500 bushels per acre."

County Agent C. L. Rumberger conducted the tour from Fayette county which was represented by E. M. Han-ning.

THE JOB IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Wise counsels seem to have been but briefly influential among the West Virginia miners who started for the Illinois region last week and turned back when the intervention of federal forces was imminent. The insur-recto movement is reported to have been resumed and Gen. W. President Harding and the Secretary of War have seriously conferred on what is to be done about it.

There never has been any uncertainty as to what would have to be done if this labor warfare were continued. The West Virginia authorities have let it develop to a point beyond their powers of control, even if they are to be credited with willingness to assert their authority energetically. It has long since passed the stage of a controversy between the workers and operators. Law-abiding people residing in the affected districts have been compelled to arm themselves to protect their lives and property from elements which would set themselves above the law.

The first business of the Army would be to suppress with such sternness as the situation might warrant every act contrary to law. Military law would be substituted for a time for the civilian power which it should be the pride of Americans to maintain. This would be done to assure to everyone the rights which are theirs under the law. But martial law cannot endure. The end of the strife must be brought about. This will be accomplished only by determining to impose upon all parties to it strict legal acts, not by countenancing miners and operators both have rights which the others cannot ignore. Organized labor must respect the legitimate rights of capital and capital must respect those of labor.

This West Virginia disturbance provides from misjudgments with respect to the rights of the confederates. It must be settled on a basis of respect for law, not merely for the peace of the outraged communities in that state, but as a lesson to the people of every state.

Insulating Furnace Pipe to Save Coal

In view of the continued high cost of coal with little likelihood of a real decline, government officials are urging the importance of conservation by better management of home furnaces during the coming winter.

Many homeowners overlook the fact that by proper insulation of furnace pipes with asbestos, they can effect an important saving in coal bills while obtaining much better heating results.

But many pipes that are covered with asbestos are covered in such a manner that a loss, rather than a saving, is the result. Experiments prove that a single layer of hot asbestos paper, pasted on bright tin pipes, inspects the heat loss.

Proper insulation with asbestos air cells, or corrugated paper, on the other hand, will more than earn its cost the first year. In the savings effected, and thereafter will yield a handsome dividend. It is easily applied, and as only the tips of the corrugating touch the pipe, loss of insulation is negligible.

This asbestos paper is simply a sheet of cardboard made of asbestos, which is a non-inflammable mineral. Corrugated asbestos or asbestos paper, similar to those of corrugated sheet board.

With two layers of asbestos air cells, and after the paper, the loss from radiation is cut in half that of bright tin pipe. When it is considered that 50 per cent of the heat is lost through radiation from bright tin pipes, the saving through proper insulation will be once understood.

The following simple rules will enable any householder to cover his furnace pipes properly with asbestos air-cell paper:

Measure the circumference of the pipe with a tape measure, and multiply this length by 2, and add 2 inches to the result. Cut off a length of paper equal to this length.

2. Throw the paper over the pipe with the corrugations against the pipe, and fasten one end to the underside of the pipe at the ends and middle, with strips of gummed tape.

3. Wrap the paper over tightly, let it up against the wall with strips, and the section should then be securely tied with at least two ties.

4. The section should then be securely tied with at least two ties.

CHAPTER XX.

Peter saw, with a sort of stupefaction, that life was satisfying her now, and life had never satisfied restlessness, exciting little Cherry before.

She spent much of her free time by her husband's side, amusing him as tactfully as a mother. She was getting so popular that she had to be made to sit down every day. Would he like her to meet George Sewall for dinner, when they could play dominoes against? Would he like the table with the picture puzzle? He would like just to talk? Very well; they would talk.

Murphy's day was as quiet and divided with small pleasures that it was apt to amuse him by passing too quickly.

He had special breakfasts. He had his supper, his hair was brushed and his bed made a dozen times a day. Cherry abased her mail, which was always heavy, with him; she dittied into the microphone for a few minutes with small messages or gossip. With her bare, bright seed, her busy white hands, her voice all motherly amusement and sympathy and sweetness, she had never seemed so much at home. She had the pleasantest laugh in the world, and she often laughed.

The sitting room was kept with exquisite simplicity, with much freshness, brightness, and order as made it a place of delight. One day Cherry brought home a great Victory bowl of silver glass, and a dozen drifting goldfish, and Murphy never tired of watching them idly while he listened to her reading.

"Cherry," Peter said, on a wet January day, when he came upon her in the dining room, contentedly arranging a great mass of wet violets. "I think Martin's out of the woods now. I believe I'll be moving along."

"Oh, we want you always, Peter!" she said, innocently regretful.

The ghost of a pained smile lit up Peter's face.

"Thank you," he said, gently. "But I think I will go," he added, mildly. She made no further protest.

"But where?" she asked sympathetically.

"I don't know. I shall take Buck-start off toward the big mountains. I'll write you now and then, of course! I'm going home, first!"

"Just now," Cherry mused, sadly, "perhaps it is best—for you—to get away. Now that Martin is so much better," she added, in a little burst. "I do feel so sorry for you, Peter! I know how you feel. I shall miss her always, of course," said Cherry, "but I have him."

"I try not to think of her," Peter said, flinging up his head.

"When you do," Cherry said earnestly, giving him more of her attention than had been usual, of late. "There is something to think, Peter. It's this: we have so much to be thankful for, because she never knew! It was madness." Cherry went on, eagerly, "Madness—that is clear now! I don't try to explain it, because it's all too easily washed away by the frightful thing that happened. I'm different now; you're different—don't know how we ever thought we could live."

There was a silence during which she looked at him anxiously, but the expression on his face did not alter, and he did not speak.

"And what I think we ought to be thankful for," she resumed, "is that Alex would rather—she would rather—it's the way. She told me that the poor heart-broken if there had been any action, separation between me and Martin, and how much worse that would have been if we had planned it, I mean. She was surprised that, and we were spared—see it now—what would have ruined both our lives. We were brought to our senses, and the awakening only came a little sooner than it would have come anyway."

Peter had walked to the window, looking out at the shabby winter scene, the wet, dripping rain, and at the broken garden where the drenched chrysanthemums had been bowed to the soaked earth.

"Here, in Dick's home," Cherry said, coming to stand beside him. "I see how wicked and how bad I was. In another twenty-four hours it would have been too late; you don't know how often I wake up in the night and shiver, thinking thereof! And as it is, I am here in the dear old house, and Martin—well, you can see that even Martin is going to be far happier than it ever was. It's such a joy to me," she added, with the radiance of the other world when her husband's comfort was under consideration, "to feel that we need never worry about the money end of things—there's no end for what we need forever!"

"You must never worry about money," Peter said. "And as ever you need it, it's a question of a long tip or of more operations—if there is any chance."

"I shall remember that I have a big brother," she said.

The room was scented by the sweet, damp flowers, and by the good odor of hardly burning logs; yet to Peter there was chill and desolation in the air.

Cherry took up the glass bowl in her bare hands, and went away to the study, but he stood by the window, for a long time staring out at the battered chrysanthemums and the ruined branches, and gradually falling rain.

A few days later, on a day of sun and sunshine and showers, Peter returned. To Cherry Peter's spirit had returned. It burned one more time behind her. It confirmed her in her old, old, old ways.

COURT REFUSES MURPHY LICENSE AS DETECTIVE

No Comment Made in Disposing of Application of Former County Official.

RETAINED BY COMMITTEE

Youth Arrested With Revolver in Western Maryland Yards Near Connellsville Declined Parade. Prefers to Go to Pelson; Divorce News.

Opinions and orders were entered in several important cases and a number of sentences were imposed at the regular session of court in Uniontown yesterday.

Application of Peter M. Murphy for a license to engage in the business of a detective and conduct a detective agency to be known as the Peter M. Murphy Detective Agency, was refused by the court Tuesday morning. The application was filed July 25. No comment was made when the order was handed down. It became known Tuesday that the Committee of One Hundred was retaining Mr. Murphy until after the next term of court and in all probability Mr. Murphy would take up permanent residence in Uniontown.

Charles Sanner, a youth who citizens Miami, Fla., as 1½ hours, refused an offer of parole from the court, saying that he preferred to serve time rather than allow his family to know he had been arrested. Sanner was arrested in the Western Maryland yards at Connellsville charged with trespassing and when the patrolmen searched him the revolver was found concealed in his pocket.

Charges of carrying concealed weapons were entered against him, to which charges he pleaded guilty and appeared before Judge E. H. Kompton for sentence. The court inquired if he wouldn't be satisfied to go back home where he belonged if the parole officer made the necessary arrangements whereupon he replied emphatically in the negative, saying that if the parole officer attempted to parole him everybody in his town would know he was in trouble and he would much rather serve the time. When the court informed him that he was sentenced to nine months in the workhouse a broad smile crept over his countenance.

Joe Blazman of Hill Coke brought his son, William, into court charged with incorrigibility, saying that his son stayed out late at night and stole money from his home. After administration the father agreed to pay the costs and take the boy home for another chance.

Henry Burkholder of Connellsville was sentenced to pay his wife $5 per week for the support of herself and child on charges of desertion and non-support.

George Robinson of Wynn was granted a divorce from May Robinson of Wheeling, W. Va., on grounds of desertion.

Agnes F. Ludwick of Uniontown was granted a divorce from Henry Ludwick of Allison, on grounds of desertion. They were married May 17, 1905, at Leckrone.

Hulda Byrly of Fairchance, is seeking a divorce from Harry Byrly, Fairchance, on the grounds of cruelty. They were married June 13, 1912, at Fairchance.

Mary Hwinckel, Grays Landing, is seeking a divorce from Ignatz Hwinckel, of Grays Landing, on grounds of cruelty. They were married August 15, 1917, at Shenandoah, Pa.

Mary Abram of Cheshire is seeking a divorce from Joe Abram of Perry township on grounds of cruelty. They were married January 27, 1904, at Cumberland, Md.

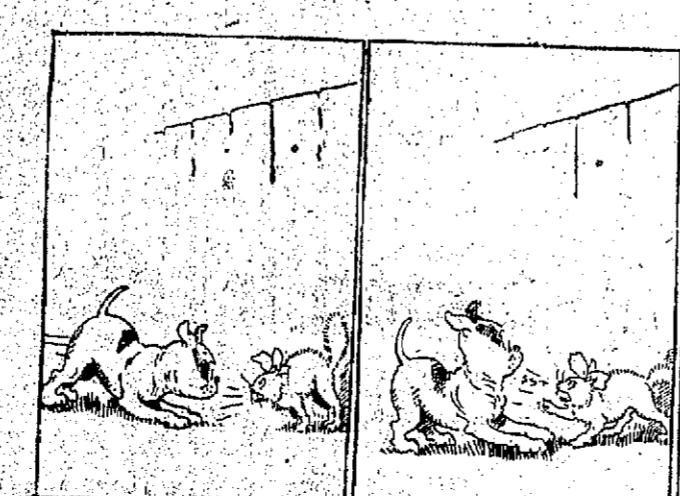

Grant Dean, pleading guilty to charges of uttering worthless checks on the Young Trust company, Connellsville, was given from 18 months to three years in the Western penitentiary. Two checks were passed, one for $20 and the last one for $350. Dean was released from the Somerset jail for the insane two years ago.

In the habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Pearl Feltner Mason against her husband, James Mason, for the possession of their three-year-old son, James, the wife was discharged and the defendant was sentenced to pay the costs in the case.

Chil Shonko to Death.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—An attempt to fasten an electric bulb into a socket of white she was dressed in a wet bathing suit caused the death of Miss Beatrice Schwartzler, 17 years old, at her home on City Island. A pool of water collected about the girl's foot and when her wet hand came in contact with the electric current she received a shock that proved fatal.

Now how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consist-

News of Dunbar

Special to The Courier.
DUNBAR, Aug. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. James T. Barrett and daughter, Buelinda, and son, Regis, and Miss Mary Lynch have returned from a very delightful outing spent in tourist Cumberland and other places of interest in Maryland in their new automobile, "Beauty Six." They made the entire trip without a single puncture or blowout. The Barretts are very proud of their car which is a fine one and the only one of the sort in Dunbar.

Roger Yaeger of Polistown has just completed improvements on the Knights Pythias' hall, including repairing and painting of the fire escape and the entire front of the building.

J. V. Swinkler will occupy his new brick garage on Wapoleale street September 1. The finishing touches are being put on now, and all is ready to be in readiness by that date. While the new garage is large enough to accommodate the present demands, it is probable the "old car" will be retained to accommodate the overflow of special occasions, owing to the town.

After undergoing camp life for some two months, Harry, Senator and Richard M. Keffer of Keffer's broke camp and came back to civilization Monday, preparatory to entering the Dunbar township high school next Monday. As a result of their outdoor life they have learned to "tough it" on their own, common and fancy cooking, and have gained materially in stature and weight.

Mrs. D. M. Paul, wife of Rev. D. M. Paul, of Monongahela, Methodist Episcopal church, who was visiting Mrs. W. H. Williams and Mrs. H. J. McGee, has returned to her home in Monongahela. Rev. Paul was a former pastor of the Dunbar Methodist Episcopal church and the family retain many of their friends here. Rev. Paul spent his vacation at Ocean Grove, N. J., the great Methodist watering place.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coopert of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Jim James of Polistown spent a part of last week visiting their old time friend, J. J. Kerwin of Connellsville street. They had not seen him for 35 years, and the renewal of friendship gave mutual delight. The boys of the past became boys again together and lived over again the days when great joys in passing they did not know. While their heads are gray their hearts are still young and they hope to keep them so.

Joseph Dinsello, the Connellsville street shoemaker, has purchased and occupies the house and lot near Hilltop, of Adolf Herskovitz, the Uniontown jeweler. Mr. Dinsello is making improvements by erecting a stone retaining wall back of the dwelling and by putting new paving in the yard.

Mrs. W. A. Hazlett of Monongahela was visiting her brother, John Wesley Devan, over Sunday. Mrs. Hazlett was formerly Miss Jessie Devan of Dunbar, one of the popular school girls in the days ago. While her dark hair has turned to gray, her cheeks still retain the rosy which she possessed when she attended the former school.

Frank Speck, who purchased the old Bryan stone mansion on Connellsville street and now occupies it, has just completed a fine double front porch and made a number of other improvements.

Miss Rosella Hubert of Youngwood, was an over Sunday guest of Mrs. Ella H. Hamilton of Church street.

When the Methodist Episcopal congregation assembled next Sunday in their church they will find a like a new one. The ceiling has been cleaned and handsomely varnished, the walls have been frescoed, and everything looks like new. Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Hardin and the boys are expected home Wednesday, and will be given a royal welcome. The contractor, Mr. Ritenour, is to be highly complimented for the excellent job he has done on the church.

The congregation of Pacific Union church are to be congratulated on having put up an entirely new roof on the church. The old roof did not prove what it was recommended to be. The

Do It Better

One man with a FORDSON TRACTOR can do more work easier and with less expense than two men can do with horses. This means that you with a FORDSON TRACTOR can actually raise more crops, with less work and less expense. And this means that your profits will be greater with fewer hours of work.

Besides the FORDSON will take care of every power job on the farm. It is light, durable, compact and maneuverable, yet it has power and endurance to spare. You should see the FORDSON to work to appreciate its wonderful capabilities. We will gladly give you the proofs if you will ask for them, either by a personal call, phone or post card.

There were so numerous that it was necessary to replace it to protect the property. Junior Baier did most of the work, supervising what he did not do, and it has been done in his characteristic excellent way. There are still some inside repairs needed, and these will be attended to in the near future. While preaching occurs infrequently, the Sunday school meets every Sunday at 2:30 P. M. and almost most cordially invited to attend and help make the church a church center for the Pacific community. The school is prospering, but all are not yet in line.

Misses Nellie and Gertie Gilmore and Miss H. T. Elenberger were Connellsville visitors Saturday.

Charles R. Forney and daughter, Miss Edele, have returned home after a 10 day visit with relatives in Kingwood, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Williams and family of Fayette street spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Hughes of Tucker Run. Mrs. Hughes is a sister of Mr. Williams.

John B. Hughes of Tucker Run was transacting business in Dunbar Saturday. Although a helpless cripple, Mr. Hughes manages successfully a nice little mountain farm, and has done so for the past 30 or more years.

STORE NEWS

N. Pittsburg Street.

These pre-school events are producing a lot of happiness

It's hard to tell who's happiest—the mother or the kids—when the new school outfit is chosen and the packages are being wrapped up.

For mother's had the thrill that every woman loves—a chance to shop around amongst good merchandise marked at very reasonable prices.

And the kids are chuckling with delight at the thought of those new toy-to-toe trappings.

And as for us we're happy that you're so happy.

So the sale goes merrily on spreading a cheerful atmosphere of its own through every interested department.

Here are school stockings to make a choice from EVERY weight, every style, every quality you could ask for in a stocking has its representative in the hosiery collection on the first floor. And you'll find the prices as varied as the stockings themselves. Starting at the top they are:

Musser Hose,

in two weights and appropriate for either misses or boys. They have white toes and heels and are extraordinarily durable. Price 90c.

Cadet Hose,

which is less expensive but likewise rich in wear-resisting qualities. Doubly reinforced with linen at knee, heel and toe and has no seams to worry tender toes and feet. Price 50c.

Silk Hose,

for the miss who loves the luxury and comfort of them. Durable enough to do for school very well and good looking enough to be a source of constant pride to the girl fortunate enough to own them. Priced 25c. (They were $1.25 last winter.)

Durham Hose

an old favorite as heavy, strong and seamless as ever. This seamless feature is worthy of special notice for it prevents a child's foot from making the start of many a foot evil which causes so much distress in later years. Priced 25c. (They were $1.25 last winter.)

Rainy day

protection

It's hard to believe that the day that kiddies would want to go to school on rainy days.

But that's quite possible now that they can have a tidy little rain coat to start out in.

Both little boys and little girls share in the rain-coat specials that are being offered in their respective departments.

And don't forget that

Thursday ends these specia-lals for little girls.
